

ABSTRACT

A method of treatment of asthma with a compound which binds to or otherwise blocks the generation and/or activity of one or more complement
5 components such as, for example, a complement-inhibiting antibody.
The compound can be administered prophylactically to prevent asthma attacks in known asthmatic individuals or as a therapeutic regimen during asthma attacks.